

Day 18 - Random Act of Christmas Kindness - Nursing Home

There are just some images that shout "Christmas". One of those images are bright red poinsettias, which takes me right to Day 18 and my "Random Act of Christmas Kindness". What a better place to deliver poinsettias than to nursing homes? As hard as a person tries, nursing homes just have that institutional feel about them. Giving the residents something to look at that is beautiful and "Christmasy" is my act of kindness for today.

I delivered four beautiful poinsettia plants today to two local nursing homes. There were no stipulations other than to pick out two residents at each nursing home who would really enjoy them. Hoping they brought a smile to someone's face today and for the rest of the Christmas season. Merry Christmas!
